

ALL AROUND THE WORLD

People are appreciating the talents, abilities, and contributions of creative people and offering support and encouragement to foster talent in others.

People are learning about, appreciating and respecting diversity: in culture, race, religion, sexual preferences and identification, talents and abilities, and in the diversity of All Life. People are having more close relationships with people who are different from them.

Elders are respected and consulted for their wisdom.

People are improving their physical and mental health, thereby improving cultural norms of ethical and moral behavior.

People at all ages are being prized for their inherent wisdom, beauty, and gifts, and enjoying many opportunities for multi-generational interaction.

Parents are being schooled about good nutrition and loving child care, before childbirth.

People are being encouraged to share mystical experiences and dreams, regarding intuition and emotional intelligence as essential and imperative for a healthy culture and society.

People are working together in their communities, cooperating for the Good of All.

People are respecting facts and scientific proof and using these and good critical thinking skills to make their decisions.

Homeless people are finding loving connections and homes.

People are connecting more deeply with more people globally.

People are discovering, creating and using new earth and people-friendly ways to have fun and enjoy their lives.

People are embracing the concept of God as Loving All-That-Is and are connecting frequently with their Inner Guidance. The whole earth is becoming more and more conscious.

Farmers are working cooperatively and sustainably, with good food distribution. People are buying their food from local farmers who farm on small, diverse farms.

People are showing more loving kindness to the earth and all its inhabitants. They are feely expressing their feelings and needs in compassionate and intelligent ways, developing empathetic skills which promote self-esteem mental health and communication.

People are increasingly understanding of and following the Laws of Nature, conserving energy and natural resources, discovering and using sustainable ways to deal with refuse.

People are accessing the beauty and health benefits of nature near where they live.

Migrant families and refugees are finding places of refuge that are comfortable and safe.

People have enough time to relax and play daily, weekly, monthly, yearly. Play is becoming a sacred act, where people are learning trust.

People are gathering in a diversity of venues to listen to wisdom stories, poetry, and music, and watch dance and theatre that inspires and enlivens.

Young people are taking leadership roles in many arenas, working cooperatively and creating innovative solutions to challenges.

People are being well educated about good nutrition, and are gathering around tables in comfort and joy, with enough nutritious food for all.

Parents and teachers are lovingly educating their children, teaching love of learning, creative and critical thinking skills, developing intellect and character, encouraging authenticity, and love and care for self, all others, and the earth. Children are enjoying being in school.

People are constructing and living in houses that are affordable and energy efficient.

People are making a living wage doing work they enjoy, and that enables them to live in comfort.

World leaders are working together to solve world problems in ways that meet everyone's needs.

People are freely given whatever assistance they need, whether financial, physical, emotional or spiritual.

People are inventing new inventions that improve life for all.

Scientists are discovering new ways to cure diseases: ways that are more healthful and less invasive. Medical people are discovering and using approaches that stress "working with" the body, strengthening the immune system and building health.

People are electing world leaders who are truthful, compassionate, intelligent, diplomatic, law abiding, astute, democratic, concerned about and working for the well being of all citizens, progressive and supportive of green energy.

Elected officials are finding ways to cooperate and collaborate across differences and party lines so positive progress is being made more quickly. Elections are fair, every vote is counted and the will of the people prevails.

Men are discovering and practicing new and compassionate ways to express their masculinity, and women are discovering and embracing the Divine Masculine within. Both men and women are reclaiming the Divine Feminine Energy, and all other gender identifications are recognizing it as an important aspect of health for the whole planet.

Women are running businesses and leading governments around the world in proportion to the percentage of the population they represent. They are using their leadership skills to create caring, inclusive companies and political systems.

Business leaders are putting people before profits, making decisions based on how they affect their shareholders (their employees, customers, and suppliers and the Earth) more than their stockholders.

Democracies are thriving and more people are participating in their governments through citizen assemblies and other ways to engage in addition to through elections.

Ecosystems are thriving because people are caring for the Earth and living more sustainably, consuming consciously, and supporting policies that honor the Earth's carrying capacity.

Created by Sue Anne Solem, environmental educator, singer/songwriter and creator of A Maya/Sufi Journey with help from some of her friends

you can contact her at beauxzoe1@gmail.com